PLAN SPORTS DAY AT PARK ON AUGUST 9

A parents' night will be held at the Lions club park on Aug. 9 as part of the six-week recreation period sponsored at the park by the Newmarket Lions club. There will be games and exhibitions by the children who have participated in the program during the afternoons.

Along with the parents, members of the council and members of the Lions club are invited to attend.

The recreation program at the park has been sponsored by the club as a means to provide healthy and supervised recreation during the summer months for children 14 years and younger. The program was under the direction of Fred L. Hall, assisted by Fred Evans and Misses Audrey Rowland and Glenna West.

The program has been well received as shown by the attendance record. During the past weeks, there has been only one occasion when the attendance fell below the 130 mark. On that day there was considerable rain and only 116 turned out. The program was originally conceived to provide field games but more recently, the children have been taken swimming by Mr. Hall or his assistants.

The program Aug. 9 will start at 6:30 p.m. and will feature baseball games, croquet, volleyball and so on. The games will be short in duration and it is expected to finish the program by 8:30.

On Friday, Aug. 17, those children who have had good attendance to the afternoon program will be treated to a swim in Lake Simcoe. On their return, they will be joined by the other children in a picnic lunch in the park by way of winding up the program for the summer.

Use Canal Property For New Town Dump

Climaxing several months of negotiating, an order-in-council was passed in Ottawa last Thursday approving the sale of land known as the "canal property" to the town of Newmarket for use as a municipal dump. Purchase price of the land is $1,000.

It is not known when dumping will begin on the new property but it is expected to be in the near future. The use of the present site has been the cause of considerable complaint from residents nearby. Recently, a large deputation appeared before council to ask that use of the old site be discontinued.

The new property extends north from Huron St. on the east side of the canal to the north limit of Davis Leather Co. property and on the west side of the canal from the rear of Davis Leather Co. to the Green Lane.

Tanners Skin Sharon 15-7, In 'Ball Classic Of Year

By ORVILLE GANTON

Jerry Germain's Tanners skinned Sharon Harvesters 15-7 in the first game of a crucial series between those two speedy silo-league clubs. The shindig was played on the back 50 at the Stuart Scott grounds as Manager Courtney was holding a drill for his Cardinals on the front lawn.

Umpire Crone, who forgot to bring his lantern, blew the whistle and shut her down at the end of the fifth inning with base hits and shades of night falling fast. "Good Roads" Farr started his ace southpaw, Glover, pitching with R. Eves spreading. Glover had a hopping fast ball but could not keep it in the furrow. Manager Germain countered with his side-wheeler, "Pigskin" Peters, but sent him packing to the beamhouse when the Harvesters commenced threshing the horsehide in all corners of the barnyard, including some over the straw stack.

"Hack" Cain, who is up with the carriers on trial from Boston, shamelessly stole home when one of Glover's fast balls became entangled in the wire backstop. The old maestro, Bas McHale, coaching for Sharon at third, protested the decision so vigorously that he swallowed his quid. The long grass no doubt helped the infielders. However, it completely obscured from view any runners sliding into the bags.

We made a futile attempt to interview Manager Germain in the club house after the game, but the only coherent statement he would make was, "Bring on the Specialty; we want the Specialty".

The teams: Sharon: Glover, R. Eves, Pegg, Greig, D. Eves, Lee, Green, Ross Eves, Farr. Davis Leather: Winger, Peters, Haskett, Harmon, Monkman, Tansley, Gunn, Cain, Bone.

Celebrates Birthday At Mother's Home

For the first time in four years, Gnr. Frederick G. Bray, R.C.N.V.R., celebrated a birthday at the home of his mother, Mrs. E. Bray, Main St., Newmarket. Entering the navy in 1941, at the age of 18, Fred has been on service in distant places until he recently got home for a 52-day leave.

The party was a combination of 22nd birthday celebration and farewell, for on July 27 he left for Halifax to report back for duty.

The evening was spent in music, after which Mrs. Bray served a lunch featured by a birthday cake. Fred was presented with a water-proof wrist watch.

YOU CAN HELP US GIVE NEWS OF A SAFE HOME COMING

Newmarket and district men and women are returning from overseas in large numbers these days. You can help us give the news of their return home if you will let us know of their arrival.

If a member of your family is expected home or has arrived home, write us a letter giving the particulars of their arrival, or better still, drop into the office and tell us about it.

The First Three Years

The following article, by Dorothy L. Bowman, Newmarket, describes the training she gave her deaf-blind baby. The article was written while she was studying in California last winter. It is published with the thought that experience may help other parents.

Carol, who is now three years and three months old, was born on Thanksgiving day—a deaf-blind baby. Her lack of sight was immediately evident—she was hopelessly blind in one eye and there was no promise of any sight in the other; but we did not know, in the beginning, that she was also deaf. Her lack of hearing was pronounced congenital when she was just a year old. I had suspected deafness previous to this time but Carol's response to the opening and closing of doors deceived us—until we learned more about vibrations. I asked the eye specialist one day if the reason Carol never turned her head when someone spoke was because she didn't see. He replied in the negative and advised me to consult an ear specialist.

The ear specialist confirmed my unhappy suspicions; and with the truth a flood of semidelirious thought seemed to be unleashed. Why were we saved for this? How can Carol be reached and taught to speak? There is a way—Helen Keller—Helen Keller...

Where can I learn what to do to give Carol the training she needs? Contact teachers of the deaf, teachers of the blind; parents of the deaf, parents of the blind, teachers of the deaf-blind, parents of the deaf-blind, schools for the deaf, schools for the blind. Read about, study and teach speech-handicapped children, deaf children, blind children, and deaf-blind children.

Suddenly, a new life opened before me—a life of service, a life with a completely worthwhile mission.

During the summer of 1943 I attended Denver University at Denver, Colorado, where I studied and practised on a variety of speech-handicapped children, the speech therapy known as motokinaesthetics under the direction of its originator, Mrs. Edna Hill-Young. From September, 1943, through June, 1944, under the auspices of the Newmarket Lions club, I studied and practised speech therapy on 35 variously handicapped speech cases in the schools of Newmarket, Ontario, Canada. During the summer of 1944, I attended the Horace Ruckham School of Special Education at Ypsilanti, Mich., studying and practising the teaching of deaf children orally.

In September, 1944, I went to California State School for the Blind at Berkeley, where I am studying and teaching a group of deaf-blind children with Miss Iris Hall, who was a teacher of the deaf-blind at Perkins Institution for many, many years. I am also taking a university extension course in language for the deaf.

The delirium I experienced when I first learned the whole truth about my baby has now definitely passed. Carol's pre-school training is a challenge to my best efforts and her progress along natural, normal lines is a great joy, and more than compensates for the time and energy I have expended in her behalf.

The delirium I experienced when I first learned the whole truth about my baby has now definitely passed. Carol's pre-school training is a challenge to my best efforts and her progress along natural, normal lines is a great joy, and more than compensates for the time and energy I have expended in her behalf.

During the past three years. Her father and I feel that we are privileged indeed to have this child entrusted to our care. She is a dear, happy, cuddly little girl who loves and is loved by all who know her.

Discipline of Carol, and a rigid schedule for her, began the day we arrived home from the hospital where she was born. If ordinary children profit from good discipline and a regular routine, it seemed doubly important for our special child to be kept unspoiled and happy, since she especially needed to be kept healthy and calm; and since so much of her learning must come from making associations, it seemed logical to facilitate the learning by constant repetition of the little acts that make up the waking hours.

Carol's cries for attention after she was put to bed for the night went unheeded, as far as she was concerned, and when her cries brought no attention, she soon ceased to disturb the rest of the household—although her parents did some real suffering during those first bad nights.

The daily routine for our child was so exact that she learned to know what to expect, which was a simple way to keep her calm and happy—in perfect health. Her meals were kept balanced, and the change from liquids to solid and then to solid foods was so gradual that she passed nicely through some of those stages which sometimes prove troublesome. In the course of this transition, she learned to feed herself with spoon and fork and to drink from a glass, holding it with one hand and replacing it on the table when finished with it.

When anything was handed to Carol, it was with some plain indication of its use. For instance, each time the hair brush was given to her, she was helped to brush her own hair. At 23 months, of her own accord, she began to brush her own hair, after a fashion.

When it was time to brush her teeth, she was helped to open the cabinet door and to take her little brush from its hook. At two years of age, when she was held in the proximity of the cabinet, she would open it and find her brush between the two big ones and immediately put it to her mouth.

Identical tins, lids, blocks, etc., were given her and she was helped to clap them together. This was repeated time after time until one day she chose a matching pair and voluntarily clapped them together. This was one lesson that I wished many times I had never begun, since it seemed to take an endless time to interest her in the project. Once her interest was aroused and captured, however, she was delighted with the clapping and transferred the idea to other activities, which included clapping Judy's hands together. (Judy is a life-size stuffed doll I made for a companion for Carol.)

Lack Of Materials Forces Postponement Of Pool Construction

At a meeting Thursday night, the Newmarket firemen decided to hold over the construction of a shower pool until next spring. The reason for the postponement was lack of materials to construct the pool. There are no showerheads available and no effective substitutes.

It was thought that when the proposal to construct the pool was first mentioned, it could be constructed in time for use by the children at the park each afternoon where the recreation program is being carried on.

The proposal to construct the pool was discussed at the last council meeting when the firemen approached council and asked the town to supply water for the pool without charge. Council agreed to supply the water if the firemen constructed the pool.

The firemen's proposal was for a pool of approximately 30 feet wide and 40 feet long and containing three or four inches of water. It was planned to erect a number of overhead showers that would give a continual spray over the children playing in the pool. The advantages of such a pool include health and safety factors. It was pointed out that the pool would be emptied and cleaned each day without too much loss of water and its shallowness would make it safe for children of all sizes.

A shower pool would have completed the facilities at the park where at present there are slides, sandboxes, teeter-totters and other recreational facilities for children.

Hollyhocks Go Up 'n Up, Latest Is 143 1-2 Inches

In the last two weeks, The Era and Express has printed reports of ambitious hollyhocks which are reaching all sorts of altitudes. In the July 19 issue, Mrs. Levi Ley of the 7th con. of North Gwillimbury reports a hollyhock 110 inches long and "in bloom from top to bottom".

In the July 26 issue, Miss Pearl Gynne, Queensville, breaks Mrs. Ley's record with a report of hollyhocks measuring 120 inches to 128 inches tall. Miss Gynne does not say, as did Mrs. Ley, whether her hollyhocks were in bloom from top to bottom but that assumption is easily come by when the fine growing qualities of North York are taken into consideration.

Now comes word of a hollyhock 143 1/2 inches. This small tree would probably have grown higher but it seems to have been hampered by the eaves of the house beside which it grows. The hollyhock was raised by Mrs. Mason of the general store at Cedar Brae, five miles north of Mount Albert.

Let no one think that Mrs. Mason's report of the height of the hollyhock is just guesswork. The hollyhock was measured by Charles Bunn, Newmarket, who delivers bread in those parts. Mr. Bunn measured the stem from top to bottom with the help of two transient railway men who lifted him up so that his yardstick could reach the tip of the hollyhock.

One hundred and forty-three and a half inches of hollyhock is a lot of hollyhock. We wonder if anyone can go one better than Mrs. Mason. Otherwise, Mrs. Mason would appear to be champion hollyhock grower of North York.

Beginners' Singles, Club Doubles Attract Bowlers

Every green was filled Friday for the annual championship club doubles and the singles tournament for new bowlers. Ken Bain won the singles with "Jigger" Galbraith in second place. The prizes, donated by Charlie Willis, will be presented at the annual meeting as in the case of other local events.

The club doubles competition consisted of three ten-end games and had a fine turn out of 16 pairs of old and new bowlers. Two pairs came out with three wins. They were Stanley Jones and Tom Doyle, and Doug Brown and Andrew Murdoch. The final for first and second prize will be played Friday night.

The final games for the Dixon shield singles will also be played. In section A, Bosworth vs. Jelley, and in section B, Flett vs. Cain, and Geer vs. Law. The winners of section B will play the winner of section A.

The regular club event will not interfere with these play-offs and all bowlers are asked to be on hand for a club trebles event. The draw will be made on the green. Bowlers are asked to be on hand at 7:15 p.m. so there will be no delay in making the draw.

LABOR VICTORY IN U.K.

The British Labor party's victory in the recent election cannot be attributed entirely to a majority approval of the party's socialistic platform. In a large measure, the Labor victory was caused by a general reaction against the Conservatives. It was more a vote of want of confidence in the Conservative party than a vote of confidence in the Labor party.

What is significant in this swing away from the Conservatives is that as an alternative, the British voters chose Labor candidates instead of Liberals. It is true that the Liberal party has lost much prestige in recent years but it is the traditional opposition party to the Conservatives and might be expected to profit by it. Its poor showing is emphasized by the defeat of such men as Sir William Beveridge.

What is the explanation of the Labor party's reputation of the Liberals' historical position? Was the Liberal party thought too weak to form a government? Was it lack of effective Liberal leadership? We think the answer is found in the increasing strength of the philosophy that state economic control is the best means to provide security.

The Liberal party is in fundamental agreement with the Conservative party on the validity of free enterprise. The two parties differ only in the means by which free enterprise may best prosper. In repudiating the Conservative economic policy, the voters were also repudiating the Liberal platform. The election issue was not as it has been in the past, how best to make free enterprise prosper, but the choice between free enterprise and state control. The Labor party, representing state control, was the only alternative for those who had lost faith in the Conservatives.

The choice of free enterprise or state control is not confined to England. It was an issue in recent elections in Canada. It was an issue in the last presidential election in the United States where the Democratic party, through the "New Deal," has become associated with socialistic tendencies while the Republican party has become the exponent of free enterprise.

This revision of party platforms towards a new emphasis on economic policy is the direct outcome of war and depression. There is little use ignoring this development. Party lines are being drawn on a new basis of state control versus free enterprise and the sooner this is realized by the voter, the sooner he will have a better understanding of issues involved in forthcoming elections.

BRING ON THE NOSE DROPS

We hereby make application for membership in the Order of Hay Fever Sufferers. We offer as references a pair of red-rimmed eyes, a persistent snuffle and our bottle of nose drops. Having only recently been diagnosed as a candidate for the Order, we have not yet learned the terminology of hay fever. We cannot talk learnedly about "shots" and the particular pollen to which we are allergic. Our sneezes, however, are most sincere.

When we learned we were so afflicted, we had no inkling of the social position that our sniffles entitled us to. Like the man who fathered triplets, people speak to us who never spoke before. Seeing our batch of nose tissues, they stop us on the street and enquire "is it hay fever?" At our nod, they launch into the history of Aunt Clara who in her prime used ten handkerchiefs a day, or Uncle Louis whose sneezes sounded like heavy artillery.

But all is not sneezes for the sufferer from hay fever. The apparatus with which he is equipped to combat the summer scourge is admirably designed for other purposes. For example, with a little application, he can become a deadly marksman with the nose dropper. A fellow sufferer has been known to pin a fly to the wall from a distance of two feet with one squirt from his dropper. The tube for nasal douches, if held in a certain manner under a running tap, will send a stream of water clear out the window to the garden below. And never let us forget what a conversational famine would result if we had no hay fever to talk about.

But for all these diversions, there is nothing that can compensate those who are afflicted with the cursed disease. It's a heavy cross for them to bear, especially when the days are so bright.

THE OTHER MAN'S GARDEN

"You can smell them but you can't pick them." It was in the evening and the air was heavy with the scent of flowers. Multi-colored phloxes peeked their way through the white picket fence and brushed against the legs of the passers-by. Two little girls, their sunsuits grubby with the day's play, hesitated before one particularly large cluster of blooms. One reached out her hand towards them. "No, no," her companion said. "You can smell them but you can't pick them."

Sometimes these days, we are inclined to expect too much from others and give not enough ourselves. Sometimes in our thinking, we are inclined to reach into another man's garden rather than labor in our own. We feel that there is more owing us than we receive. We expect others to provide for the needs we should provide for ourselves.

We all want a lasting peace. We can have it. We all want security for ourselves. We can have it. We all want a fuller, happier life for ourselves and our children. We can have that too. We can have all these things if we want them enough to go after them no matter how thorny the road towards them is.

We must each make the effort. The other man isn't going to do it for us. We may enjoy to a certain extent the fruits of the other man's labor but unless we labor too, full achievement will never be ours. We can enjoy the scent of his flowers but we can't pick them and hope to call them our own. We can dream, we can hope and plan, but unless we all give to those dreams and hopes and plans the labor of our hands and heads, they will never be real. They will always remain beyond us.

A SUGGESTION FOR A GOVERNOR-GENERAL

(The following editorial was written before the announcement of the appointment of Field Marshal Alexander as the new governor-general.)

Canada will soon have a new governor-general. There has been considerable speculation on the choice of that representative of the king in Canada. The Duke of Windsor has been mentioned. Field Marshall Smuts has been another suggestion. A third, found in July 21 issue of News, is the appointment of someone from India. Commenting on the latter in the latest issue of Fellowship, the monthly bulletin of the Canadian Conference of Christians and Jews, C. E. Silcox writes:

"It would do much to sublimate the internal antagonisms of Anglo-Canadians and French-Canadians and save Canada from devastating preoccupation with futile and internal controversies. It would give a demonstration to the whole world that the British Commonwealth of Nations was still a potent reality and not simply an 'expedient' agglutination of sovereign or semi-sovereign states. It would lift up the head of every Asiatic and indeed of every darker-skinned person in the world, challenging his thoughts, emotions and prejudices.

"Since the Dominion of Canada is the most purely European, the most purely 'white' country in the western hemisphere with the possible exception of Uruguay, it would in thus honoring a son of India, strike a death-blow at racial arrogance which, more than economic inequities, has led to the unrest of the last 25 years and bathed most of the world's continents in blood. It would prove that persons of Anglo-Saxon and French origin were as free from race-discrimination as Soviet Russia, especially when in the immediate present there are some evidences of a Pan-Slavic revival in eastern Europe. It would be a most effective answer to critics of the British Empire in the United States, some of whom are always ready to pluck out the mote in the eyes of their allies while they ignore the beam in their own eyes."

The suggestion is good. It would, as the author says, do much to alleviate racial prejudices. We fear, however, that the same conditions that such an appointment would improve will stand in the way of its ever being made.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR DOMINION-PROVINCIAL TALKS

In a recent release from the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the following recommendations for discussion at the dominion-provincial conference were listed as essential to the betterment of Canadian farming:

"Maintenance of support for and stability in prices for agricultural products in both domestic and export trade.

"Enactment of a suitable dominion marketing act.

"More effective co-ordination of agricultural services as between the dominion and the provinces.

"Co-ordination and expansion of agricultural research, with a fuller recognition of its importance, and with provision for consultation from time to time with producer organizations.

"Continuation of the annual dominion-provincial conference on agricultural production.

"Continuation of the advisory committee to the minister of agriculture and the Canadian food board.

"Enactment of a suitable dominion health insurance plan along the lines recommended in the federation's plan submitted in 1943.

"Enactment of a suitable dominion co-operative act."

In substance, the federation brief lays emphasis on providing the Canadian farmer with a market price which will be sufficiently stable for him to estimate the value of his production before he enters upon it. Knowing what return he will have for his labors will do much to remove the uncertainty from farming.

Equally stressed in the brief is the need for expanded dominion-provincial co-operation in agricultural services. The combined resources of dominion and provincial agricultural departments in research, crop improvement, education and marketing can only result in raising the level of Canadian farming.

It is to be hoped that the federation brief will receive the measure of attention at the conference that it is entitled to. Farming has too often been made a hazardous occupation for those engaged in it through the lack of proper attention and understanding from governments. Full consideration of the federation brief must be made an important part of the conference.

STRONGER LABOR POLICY NEEDED

Wednesday morning there was a report that the negotiations to settle the packing house strike which has tied up the Canada Packers plant across Canada and threatens to tie up additional meat packing houses had fallen through and that the strike was continuing. It is reported that the union had sent a telegram to Ottawa requesting the federal government to take over the plant before the strike tied up the whole meat packing industry of Canada.

The strike has now continued a week. There was no need for it to have lasted over a day. Immediate federal action would have kept the plant open while a board of arbitration, immediately established, would have enabled a prompt settlement of the dispute. Perhaps such action would have been labelled "government interference" at another time but present conditions demand that nothing be allowed to interfere with the production of meat.

With Canadian consumers facing a drastic reduction of their meat supply, with heavy commitments to overseas markets, and the demands imposed on the meat packing industry by the needs of the armed forces, a condition exists that makes any interference with the production of meat a national emergency. That the strike has been permitted to continue the length of time it has is a poor reflection upon the federal labor policy.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT SWIMMING IN NUDE COSTS YOUTH $17.75

A fine and costs to a total of $17.75 were levied against a youth who was found guilty of swimming in the nude within sight of a public place by Magistrate W. E. McIlveen in magistrate's court here on Friday. The charge was laid by Constable Carl Morton, North Gwillimbury. Two others were also charged but did not appear in court.

Constable Morton told the court that the accused were swimming near the dance pavilion on the Jersey River in plain sight of travellers on the highway and cottagers. Called to the stand, the accused stated that he had taken every precaution against being seen. "It was an awfully hot day," he said.

The police have been very tolerant about such matters, the magistrate said. "You were going too far when you went swimming so near a public place."

John James, Pefferlaw, was found guilty of threatening Maisy Welsh, Pefferlaw, and was bound over for the sum of $200 to keep the peace. Miss Welsh and another witness, Harry Leduc, testified that on the night of July 4, accused threatened "to get" Miss Welsh. There had been other threats, they testified.

A charge of fraud against George Perrier was dismissed when Magistrate McIlveen ruled that there had been no intent to defraud on part of the accused. Roy Mitchell testified that he had sold a car to accused who had paid him by a cheque which had been returned marked "not sufficient funds". Accused said that when he learned of the cheque's return, he had paid cash. He said that he had over-drawn before and that the bank was accustomed to his over-draws.

Peter Skabernicky was fined $10 for driving without a license after the hearing of charges laid against him by Constable William Hill following an accident on the Hedge Road on July 1. The car driven by the accused left the road and crashed into a concrete culvert. Accused pleaded not guilty to a charge of dangerous driving.

"I was called to investigate a car accident a half mile east of Jackson's Point on July 1," the officer said. "I found the car driven by the accused had left the road and hit a concrete abutment, smashing car beyond repair."

Cross examined by the defence, the officer said that there had been no middle line on the road at the point of the accident, that there was a bad bend in the road and that there had been several accidents at that point before. There were no witnesses to the accident.

Magistrate McIlveen, in dismissing the dangerous driving charge, cited as a precedent a judgment ruling that the crown must establish that the car reached the position it did through dangerous driving. "The crown does not establish here that the car hit the abutment through dangerous driving on the part of the accused and I am dismissing the charge," he said.

Testifying in a charge against a boy who had admitted taking his car without his consent, Roy Middlebrook said that he had followed the accused in another car, catching him at Eagle St. He said that he felt he was partly at fault in the charge against the boy because "he had left the keys with the car and there was no hindrance to anyone taking it".

The original charge against the accused had been car theft. It was changed at the request of Crown Attorney Arleigh Armstrong to taking a car without

No Exaggeration To Reports Of Bomb Damage - Soldier

From inside Germany, Cpl. J. E. Moulds writes his thanks to the Newmarket Veterans' Association Comforts fund for cigarettes lately received. He hopes to reach home soon but "they tell us that there will be 126,000 men still overseas, exclusive of occupation forces, after Christmas," he writes.

"I am a long way into Germany now," he writes. If you can locate a place called Neumunster, I am 18 kilometres east of there." Cpl. Moulds says he has been in most of the large German cities and that "one thing I can state for sure is that there is absolutely no exaggeration of the damage done to German cities, factories, marshalling yards and other installations by our air forces."

"The Germans will never forget our air forces. I am sorry to say though that they are only ashamed of losing the war, not of starting it. I'm afraid they will never be ashamed of that."

A second letter to the veterans is also datelined Germany. Major E. M. Ewing writes: "I am in Schleswig Holstein now. Some parts of the province are rather like the surroundings of Newmarket, with rich farming land and plenty of trees. The western part, near the coast, is reminiscent of Holland with its marshes and dykes. I have had the opportunity of going to Kiel and Hamburg several times and see the effect of the bombing. It is rather terrible even if deserved."

Cards of thanks for cigarettes sent overseas by the Newmarket Veterans' Association Comforts fund have also been received from Sgt. J. E. Marrow and Tpr. A. D. Neufeld.

Redmen Find Themselves, Take Army Drivers 7-4

By BERNIE GANTNER

In a softball thriller marred by ten errors, the Redmen shook off a five-game slump with a masterful performance to send Clare Exelby's army drivers reeling in the first game of the garrison league round-robin play-offs. The score was 7-4, the camp boasting a wide margin of superiority on the evening's play, defensively and offensively.

With Lorne Tunstead on the mound for the drivers and Bob King toting the rubber for the Redmen, the contest was expected to develop into another pitchers' classic but what it eventually developed into was a pitchers' nightmare for Tunstead anyway. Lack of support for Tunstead in the early innings plus some lusty pokes in the fourth started the locals on a five-run spurt which proved just enough to defeat Exelby and company.

Drivers tallied two runs in the opening frame without a single blow as King, after retiring the first two men to face him, suddenly lost control, walking four in a row and forcing in a counter. Joe Buda, newcomer to the team, was rushed in to stem a threatening situation, escaping with only one run chalked up against him, that on a muffed at second, before retiring the side.

The camp notched a single marker in the second on a walk to Murden, Harris' sacrifice and a double by Gantner. The Drivers retaliated in their half with a base on balls and two hits, making it 3-1 for them. It remained like that until the big fourth when the No. 23 sluggers finally regained their batting eye to send five scampering across the platter, hits by Taylor, Callanan, Guidici, and Murden with two miscues thrown in being the telling blows.

With Buda fogging them across in grand style, the visitors were only able to pick up one more tally in the seventh, the winners nullifying it with one of their own and that's the way it ended up, 7-4 for the Redmen, their first triumph in six attempts.

The heavy-hitting, star-studded drivers, with Clare Exelby, Billy Kelly, Bill Summerhill and Wilf Smith in the line-up, were limited to five measly blows by young Buda, who was in uncanny control throughout the contest. The Beaches League stars were popping up in the seventh, Buda baffling them completely with his marvellous change of pace.

Ten miscues, six by the drivers and four by the Redmen, may have entered the official score book, but the large Tuesday night crowd was treated to an exceptionally interesting and thrilling game which provided twice as many fielding features as errors. Summerhill and Kelly pulled off a few corkers while the infield combination of Jamieson, Gantner and Callanan were responsible for 19 put-outs, eight of them in the sensational category.

SHORTS ON SPORTS

By ORVILLE GANTON

Cardinals almost clinched first place by mauling the army gals 19-6 in five innings Tuesday. Then came the rains. It was a lackadaisical frolic with neither team hardly musing their hard-fought for A Tree Grows in Brooklyn.

Only two games remain in the regular schedule; Army take on Cards and Orioles. Then come the play-offs which should produce some hard tussles.

The game between Sharon and Davis Leather Co. on Monday stirred up a lot of fun. We should organize a four-team league next season comprising Davis, Office Specialty, Aurora and Sharon. Fellows who work inside all day need such healthy outdoor diversions.

Last Thursday, Orioles finally won one from their local nemesis, the Cards, in their last clash of the season. They spanked Marg. Hisey for eight runs in the first frame. However, Marg. tightened up for the rest of the route and the Cards almost put it in their compacts.

With play-offs just around the corner, Courtney is still experimenting with his line-up. His infielders are perfect strangers to one another every game.

Now that the pitchers are developing better control, batting averages are dropping to more respectable figures. Latest compilation shows that the first eight in order are: Manning (C), VanZant (O), Hisey (C), McKenzie (C), M. Osborne (O), Clarke (23), Dean (C), Kalagian (23).

Director Hall of the Lions play grounds is holding baseball quizzes during rest periods. This is an excellent means of teaching the youngsters the finer points of the game.

He is also trucking the children to Glenview every day for a swim. Although this is a rather large undertaking it is certainly proving very popular with the kiddies this hot weather.

Quarters For Junior Classes On Council Agenda Aug. 7

The regular August meeting of the Aurora council will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 7, at 8 p.m. because of civic holiday on Monday. The agenda appears light but one of the main topics to be discussed will be that of the proposal to house the beginners' classes of Aurora public school in the present public library quarters while the library would be moved to Health Hall.

In the meantime, Donald Galbraith, deacon, and officials of Aurora Gospel church have received a notice under the signature of Miss Lois Love, secretary-treasurer of the Aurora public school board, to vacate the premises known as Health Hall, occupied by the church the past two years.

The notice calls for the premises to be vacated by Aug. 20.

"We have not as yet been able to obtain other premises and it will be difficult to do so," Mr. Galbraith said. "Our rent is paid from the first of each month and we have no lease. The board would never give us one. We are still hopeful that something may turn up to solve the problem but the church will carry on in any case, by some means. We are considering our position."

Mr. Galbraith expressed the opinion that there were many different viewpoints in town regarding the proposed changes and he hoped that those interested would make their wishes known to council and the school board.

Church Vacation School To Be Held Aug. 7 - 17

For the third successive year, the annual church vacation school, entirely undenominational, will be held from Aug. 7 to Aug. 17 at Trinity parish hall with Rev. Canon F. J. Fife of Trinity Anglican church as dean of the school.

Children from four to 12 years will be taught woodwork, handicraft, drama, religious instruction and home economics. Music and recreation will also play an important part in the syllabus. The annual concert and display of work will bring the school to a close. Classes are held from Tuesday to Friday inclusive both weeks, commencing at 9 a.m. and closing at 11:30 a.m. The registration fee is 25 cents per family.

Lorne C. Lee will officially open the school on Tuesday, Aug. 7, which is expected to have an enrolment of around 100. Last year there were 125 Aurora youngsters enrolled.

While the staff is not as yet complete, Rev. J. T. Rhodes of Roche's Point will be in charge of woodwork, assisted by Mr. Alfred Willingham. Mrs. Robert Willis will direct the recreation period. Others who will have classes include Mrs. Robert Hodgkinson, Mrs. David Judd, Mrs. William Waite, Mrs. F. J. Fife, Mrs. George Pattenden and Miss Betty Corbett.

The school has been widely approved by parents and children alike in other years and has come to fill a needed place in the life of the community. Children are not obligated to attend all the sessions but may fit their plans in with those of their parents.

Jack Orr; relay race: 1. C Coy (Gilbert, Babcock, Oosterhuis, Monkman); tug-of-war: 2. C Coy.; 100 yds. (officers): 2. Lieut. Delroy Babcock; 60 yds. (officers): 2. Lieut. Delroy Babcock.

C Coy. defeated A Coy. for the soccer championship, the teams being eight aside in place of the customary 11. The North York team was composed of Walter Bunn, C.S.M. Jack Orr, Gil Oosterhuis, Bill Babcock, Sgt. Hal Corbett, Burt Gilbert and Tommy Scratchard.

Capt. J. Grainger, Weston, won the rifle shooting honors with a perfect score of 90. Sgt. George Shoults of C Coy. posted an 84, top for the company. But Sgt. Shoults, according to the experts, was a bit below par that day. A Coy. won the softball crown, C Coy. being eliminated by D Coy.

Swimming was a popular feature and the North York boys saw action in the water almost every day.

R.C.O.C. TRIMS NAVY

BANTAMS TIE MILLIKEN, DEFEAT STOUFFVILLE

Aurora Bantams climbed into the thick of the fight in the York Lions league by virtue of tying Milliken 6-6 in Milliken last Friday and slugging out a 19-2 win over Stouffville in the local park on Monday night. Stouffville handed the previously undefeated Hill team two losses last week.

It was a pitcher's battle at Milliken between Simmons and Powell, Aurora getting three hits to Milliken's two, but the homesters bunched their bingles. Both clubs committed two errors, and the game generally was one of the best of the year.

From the drop of the hat on Monday night, Aurora had the Indian sign on the Stouffville kids, driving Gary Lewis to the showers in the second frame with a five-run rally. Ward, a southpaw, succeeded him but was no mystery to the local youngsters who swung freely.

Keith Kyle was on the mound for the locals and allowed but two hits and the two runs garnered were unearned as his fielders slipped. Gerry Simmons took the mound in the seventh and held Stouffville scoreless. Andy Closs, Ron Simmons and Kyle carried the heavy artillery for Aurora.

FORMER GORMLEY GIRL IS MARRIED

A wedding of wide interest took place Saturday afternoon in St. John's chapel, Toronto, when Barbara Joan Brown, daughter of Mrs. A. Roy Brown and the late Capt. A. Roy Brown, became the bride of F.O. Philip Victor Broderick, R.C.A.F., son of Rear Admiral V. G. Broderick, C.B.E., and Mrs. Broderick, Vancouver, B.C. Rev. T. J. McCann officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. T. F. Monypenny, wore a gown of white fantasy crepe with full skirt and long train and her grandmother's veil caught to a headress of white gladioli petals and bouvardia. She carried a matching bouquet. Miss Margaret Brown, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Helen Gillies was the bridesmaid. Both wore white sheer gowns, matching gloves, peach shade half hats and carried matching flowers. Mr. Donald Brown, brother of the bride, was best man and Mr. David Alexander and Mr. Bob Houston were the ushers.

Guests were received at the home of the bride's grandfather, Mr. T. F. Monypenny, on Lytton Blvd. The bride's mother, wearing a pearl grey ensemble, matching hat and white flowers, received.

Later the couple left on a trip to Vancouver Island. For traveling the bride chose a brown linen suite, matching accessories with beige purse and corsage of yellow roses.

The bride formerly resided at Gormley. Her father, Capt. Brown, shot down Baron Richtofen in the last war. She attended Aurora high school and left school to join the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) in 1943, becoming a section officer.

J. M. WALTON SELLS OUT TO FLOYD CORNER

Several business changes have taken place on Aurora's Main street. After many years as an insurance and real estate agent and before that as a private banker, J. M. Walton has sold his business to Floyd Corner, barrister son of Harry Corner, ex-warden of York, and Aurora realtor.

L. C. Lee, Aurora barrister, who owns the building where the Walton office has been located for over 25 years, moved his office from the upstairs to that formerly occupied by Mr. Walton, while A. E. L. Maughan, Aurora insurance broker and real estate agent, will occupy part of the former Walton office.

Garnet Barrager, Aurora photographer, has already established his dark room and finishing and developing rooms in the upstairs of the Lee building and it is expected will shortly open a studio in the quarters occupied by Mr. Lee.

Mr. Floyd Corner and R. H. Corner have taken offices in the front of the second floor of the Ardill Block and will carry on business from there. Mr. Corner has taken over the conveyancing, estates, insurance and real estate business from Mr. Walton. Miss Mildred Graham, formerly employed by Mr. Walton, joins Mr. Corner as an employee.

Next to Life Itself...

... your eyes are Nature's most precious gift. Certainly they are deserving of the reasonable care necessary to ensure their continued efficiency.

Good eyes are the right of everyone, but the heavy strain and unnatural conditions imposed by modern living often cause the eyes to show signs of failing. Headaches, eyestrain or fatigue are signals to give your eyes needed attention. Have your eyes examined NOW.

When you have your eyes examined, enquire about modern CORRECTAL LENSES. They give you clear vision right to the very edges, yet cost no more than other fine lenses.

DOWN THE CENTRE

Les Rose, former Newmarket boy now keeping a general store at Angus, is performing in the outfield for the Angus Bombers in the Centre Simcoe softball circuit and playing a fine game. Les is also one of the lads who keeps the team going come good or bad fortune.

Russ Burrows, the big, tall Markham boy who has served in Canada's navy the past three years and developed into one of Ontario's leading fastball tossers, has been discharged from the navy and it didn't take Sammy Shesky long to sign him on the dotted line for the Tip Top club in the Beaches, league. Russ pitched for navy at Newmarket on July 1.

Hugh Cuddie, who played centre field for the tars that date and rates as one of the Beaches league's leading hitters as well as a standout footballer, has also been discharged from the silent service. Bill Brown, elongated hurler of the Canadian armored corps softball club at Camp Borden, has set up a record that will take some beating this year. He has won five games of five started, twirling a no-hitter, one-hitter, two two-hitters and one three-hit games for a total of eight hits. He has fanned an average of close to 12 per game and given up a total of two runs, only one of which was earned. That's pitching in any man's league and the Camp Borden circuit is one of the strongest service league in the country.

Sgt. Jack McDonald, former maestro of Newmarket camp softballers and ex-coach of the hockey club, is still around Newmarket and coaching the Orioles in the Newmarket girls' softball loop although discharged from the service. Jack and his birds are flying high right now and if the supply of cigars in canaltown holds out, he will probably be able to lead the gals to the pennant.

Blondie Rawlings, former King-Aurora softballer and also a member of Aurora juniors and King City hockeyists, is back from overseas after nearly nine months of action. Hopes to hit the Pacific show shortly.

Norm Goodhead, left-handed first sacker for the Aurora R.C. O.C. softballers, is playing outstanding ball this season and on his present showing could make the grade in faster company. Ace Yake, ye olde portside of Aurora softball, is honeymooning at Niagara Falls as we write these lines. He middle-aided it early in the week with Miss Theda Ransom and best wishes are extended to the couple for the future. Ace, recently home from overseas, reports to the Pacific forces on the 13th.

Leonard Shropshire, veteran hockey and softball player of the district, merits congratulations these days for the splendid way he came through the ordeal of having a stork visit the Shropshire menage and leaving a daughter. Teddy Bennett, the old man river of Richmond Hill softball, took to the hilltop last week and downed the second place Kennedy's team to keep Roselawns in front of the Wanless league. "Benny" allowed eight hits, struck out six and gave no charities. All of which adds up to the fact that he is almost as good as ever and softball is not necessarily a young man's game. Who can recall when Teddy wasn't playing softball? Our memory fails to provide accurate information although we know his real age.

A challenge has been forwarded through this corner by Barrie softballers to Charlie Ryan of Richmond Hill or any of the softball clubs in North York for a series for the Patterson trophy, presently held by Richmond Hill. The cup was originally donated by the Newmarket sportsman for York-Simcoe competition and has not been competed for since Barrie Collegians won out. Rose-lawn could play under the Richmond Hill banner and, of course, Unionville of the Denton league, the Willowdale winners or any other club including Newmarket camp and Aurora R.C.O. C.

The military teams, however, would have to obtain sanction to play against civilian teams. Probably a series between Roselawns (Richmond Hill) and either Allandale C.N.R. or Barrie Harmony Grill would be the most logical.

Archie Marshall, first sacker of Allandale C.N.R., and Steve Hines, third sacker of Harmony Grill, are the lads who came forth with the idea. Archie will be remembered from the days when Allandale Imperials used to clash with "Big Alex" Webster and the Redmen while Hines is of more recent Barrie Collegians vintage. Both boys are also wondering if Bob Peters (known as "The Silent One") would be interested in rounding up an old timers' team from the district to play a Barrie club about the same age for charity purposes. There now, something should develop somewhere along the line that would provide the fans with a smart series and also produce a few chips to help war memorial or juvenile charitable funds. The Barrie league will declare a winner around the end of August.

Fennell's Corners are the 1945 champions of the Bradford community softball circuit. They defeated Bradford village 8-1 in the final and clinching game. Congratulations are in order for those charged with running the league for having the complete schedule finished in time for the boys to enjoy vacations and not interrupt the play-offs and finish in good time ahead of darkness and weather obstacles. We have always favored a short, snappy schedule that didn't drag out too long. Meanwhile, Bradford kids are readying themselves for the first round of the Ontario juvenile softball playoffs and celerytown has some pretty fair players ready to face the outside opposition. The Lions club, of course, is sponsoring the entry.

Johnny Callanan and Tommy Jamieson both made their appearance in the line-up for Ostrander in the Davisville senior circuit and looked mighty good. Roy Murden, of course, is already on the list, ready to play for the Ossies. Both boys are definitely of senior calibre but in some of the recent games, according to some of the fans, "Long John" has been slipping a bit in the field. Probably only a temporary lapse and he'll still be tops as an outfielder. Some of his teammates have been showing signs of weakness too.

Earl Cook, "The Lemonville Farmer", is playing for Jim Maher's entry in the Toronto Congress league. But he failed to appear in any of the three games won by his teammates over the weekend as they rolled to victory in the Toronto and district Congress tournament for the right to meet London Majors (Army?) for the Canadian Congress title.

By one of those whimsies that occur so frequently in sport, Al Yarnell, veteran Toronto southpaw, worked in all three games and was credited with the three for Mahers. Yarnell was once a teammate of Cook in amateur ball. The two had professional trials with Toronto Leafs, Earl going on to tarry briefly in the big leagues and Al going back to amateur. Now both are on the same club and both about the same age. Yarnell is the star of the club while Cookie has been able to turn in only a fair brand of ball. tournament finalists. James Frank, now grey-thatched and a bit paunchy, was officially listed as utility infielder and third base coach and did appear in the latter role. "Dutch" was quite busy welcoming a number of his old buddies. He has been in the R.C.A.F. as corporal disciplinarian for four years and has just moved east. Remember when he refused to play Metropolitan league hockey with his home town and started for Aurora and what a ride he perpetually received? Cain was one of the greatest players ever developed in the league, later performing for Toronto St. Pat's, Montreal Maroons, Buffalo and St. Louis. He refereed the Waterloo Siskins-Aurora Tigers game back in 1942 and his officiating in that game was not a point Aurora fans wish to remember.

Hi gang! and by "gang" we mean that host of kid baseball players of the North York Lions league. Do you want to become a star? Do you want to learn some of the inside stuff that may lead you to fame and fortune? If so grab a pen right now and send a letter to Arthur Lehman of the Toronto baseball club telling him you'd like to appear at the school being held by the Leafs and Philadelphia Athletics at Maple Leaf stadium from Aug. 23 to Aug. 25 inclusive. Here's what to do. Send in your name, age, weight, experience, club and the way you bat and throw and position. Get your coach or manager to endorse the idea to give it weight, for they won't be able to handle all the kids that want to go. Age from 14 to senior. Players to provide their own outfits, gloves and shoes.

The school instructional cadre includes Chief Bender, the great Indian pitcher of the Athletics who will be well remembered by your dad or grandpappy for his feats on the mound when Connie

Mack was almost a young man. He led the American league pitchers in 1910 with 23 wins and five losses and still holds the record for the greatest number of world series strike-outs, 59 in five series. Now, along with Ira Thomas, another great player, he's one of the ace scouts of the American league. Harry Davis, manager of the Toronto Leafs, Jimmy Grudiz, Luke Hamlin, Al Jarlett and others of the Toronto baseball club will be present too. It's a great opportunity, fellows, and we hope some of the North York kids will have the courage to try out and will get that needed backing at home. We can turn out good ball players as witness Earl Cook and the present day crop of youngsters are getting a chance Cookie didn't have. Don't be bashful. We know from personal observation and accurate reports that some of you have a real future in baseball. You may be away from it all in three or four years but the experience will do you a world of good.

Huba, huba, huba. It's yours truly for the Canadian open golf championship at the Thornhill club plus a lot of other sporting events as holidays are at hand. Art Hulbert, the husky professional at Thornhill, has only shot one 63 over the North York course in 20 years of play and figures that Byron Nelson, Sam Snead, Jug McSpaden, Sammy Byrd and the rest won't touch that figure once during the three days of play starting today. Hulbert has been many times in the 60's and with those divot diggers in action you can expect to see the par 70 battered down quite frequently. Hulbert says a 72-hole total of 274 should take the honors. Personally, we settle for around 270.

The test for long ball hitters is on the first seven holes, where you have to shoot straight as a die in most cases. The fifth and seventh are par threes and are really well trapped. The short 13th will also present its moments. The course runs a total of 6,747 yards with the tees moved back. The fairways are so well watered they resemble velvet and a long hit ball stops almost dead in its tracks. However, these top-flight pros are playing day-in-and-day-out subpar golf, so Thornhill shouldn't be too bad for them.

Hope the Canuck golfers do well, but can't see any of them within the first five. The gallery should be the biggest in the history of Canadian golf and Thornhill does present a nice terrain for the spectators, although it may be a bit dangerous in spots if the ball doesn't fly right as several of the holes are practically Siamese twins. Nelson will naturally enough be ruling favorite but don't count out McSpaden or Wood. For those of you who have never seen a golf championship played or don't know anything about the game, there's an appeal that comes after you've seen one or two of the better players. You'll become a bug overnight. Purely as a social or curiosity feature we figure it a "must" on each year's sports parade.

Guess Bill Holloway and us will have to shake the shoes and gloves from out of the moth balls and seek fame and fortune. (My wife looked over my shoulder and suggested Ponce de Leon and the fountain of youth was what we both needed to seek, aside from the happy cabbage. Well, we can dream can't we?). But frankly, it would be quite a kick to cavort around Maple Leaf stadium and meet these ball players we've idolized from afar. We mean Chief Bender, not some of the present day crop whom we know.

"Slay the bloke." That's the way the fans in Australia razz the umpire as American and Canadian players popularize the fans down under with the great American game. "Bully pitch" is the way the pitcher is rewarded for some good throwing. These Australians, according to all reports, may not know the North American jargon but they do know smart plays when they see them and are really taking to both softball and baseball. Baseball was introduced on the island continent around 60 years ago but it has taken World War 2 to really make it a top-ranking sport.

We have just learned that Earl McCready, popular Aurora resident and one of the leading world wrestlers, engaged in 37 bouts on his recent west coast tour and didn't lose a bout. As of last Friday he became the toast of Orillia where he won his bout before a crowded house.

KESWICK

Our countryside is now at the peak of its midsummer beauty. From the heights of land the fields are checkerboards of green and contrasting shades such as buff and tan. Trees and bushes are still a verdant green because of the abundant (too abundant) moisture earlier in the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Yeates have as guests their daughter, Mrs. Dobson, and grandson, Ronnie, Toronto.

The Sunday evening concert and sing-song at Indianola Beach Park was enjoyed by a large crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hensley and young son, Toronto, were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hopkins.

Pine Beach Park will be the setting for the evening service of the United church next Sunday evening at 8. The general public is invited. Rev. Gordon Lapp will be in charge.

Mr. Aitken, Metropolitan United church, London, took her place as soloist last Sunday but Mrs. Florence Marshall, Indianola, will sing next Sunday morning at the United church.

Recent supper guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Cole were her mother, Mrs. Thompson, and Mrs. Thompson's son, daughter-in-law and grandson from Willmore, North Dakota. The grandson, Mr. Chas. Sheppard, is a student for the ministry and spends his summer vacations at a singing evangelist, serving at camp meetings and summer schools at various places in the states.

The best wishes of many friends will follow Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weaver and children on their removal to Toronto. Mr. Weaver recently received an honorable discharge after five years and five months in the Canadian army. This period included service in England, Sicily and Italy. The Weavers have sold their house in Keswick.

Miss Joy Marritt is at Mountain Lake as guest of her aunt and cousin, Mrs. W. King and Miss Annie King. Mrs. King is improving after a recent illness.

W.P.T.B. ANNOUNCES VEGETABLE CEILINGS

Lower consumer ceiling prices will be in effect August 1 for beets, cabbages and carrots. F. L. J. Seldon, prices and supply representative, wartime prices and trade board, announced today. Maximum prices throughout central Ontario for beets will be five cents a pound; cabbage six cents a pound; carrots, washed, five cents a pound; carrots, unwashed, four cents a pound. These prices for beets and carrots are without tops.

Beets and carrots with full fresh tops will have a ceiling price of two pounds for 15 cents. Although these are the maximum prices, Mr. Seldon said that the public will find many merchants selling at prices below these ceilings.

The prices board requires that all these vegetables be sold by weight. Prices that come in August 1 will be effective until August 15 when there will be a further slight reduction.

Four great, great, great, granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Birchard, original settlers in the Mount Albert district, visited their ancestral home recently. Three of the girls, whose surname is Smith, come from British Columbia. The fourth visitor is Mrs. W. G. Green, Eugene, Oregon. While in Mount Albert, they were guests of Mrs. Ira Morton, their only relative now living in Mount Albert.

In relationship to other early settlers in Mount Albert, the visitors are great, great granddaughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rear and granddaughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rear.

The evening concluded by both groups joining in an ice cream social.

FO and Mrs. Howard Folliott, King, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rogers last Thursday.

ol; as a useful third party in some of our lessons, she is ideal.)

A lesson once begun must be continued, according to the rules I made to guide me, and which I offer later in this article in the hope that they will prove as valuable to other parents as they have to us.

From babyhood, always at bedtime I would kiss Carol on her cheek, then press her lips to my cheek. When she was five months old, she surprised me by returning my kiss—wet and loud.

I was so surprised I almost dropped her. It was the most thrilling kiss of my existence. We had a little kissing party that night lasting until all her kisses were gone. We understood each other much better after that.

Soon after this, she began returning everyone's kisses—a response which endears her to others and keeps her the cuddly baby she is. She has learned to be cautious in responding to kisses from her father, not wishing to be scratched by his whiskers; and she seems to find men's faces more interesting to feel with her sensitive fingers than women's—again probably because of the whiskers.

Extra hugs and kisses are the only rewards Carol expects or receives for her achievements. Sometimes after pleasing herself by chalking up a new accomplishment, her little face assumes quite a "smart" look. I noticed this expression the time she succeeded, after a real struggle, in pulling off her socks alone (at the age of 22 months); and again when she discovered we both had noses, ears, tongues and hair.

We make games of everything. I pull her nose; she pulls mine. When I put my tongue out, she must do the same. She has fun finding my thumbs in my fists by pulling up the fingers. She holds her tiny hands very straight, with the palms facing me, when I go through the "pease porridge hot, pease porridge cold" routine. Carol's father plays "rough-house" with her and she loves it; but she doesn't expect the same treatment from me or anyone else.

The lady in whose home we are now living taught her in one easy lesson to stiffen her knees and lean back while she slid her along the floor. Days later, when the two next met, Carol took her friend's hands, stiffened her knees and leaned back, all ready for the slide.

Carol will take a few steps alone with her "other mother"—the lady who stays with her during school hours when I am obliged to be away from her.

That Carol associates "ma-ma" with me was demonstrated last summer when I left her with her grandmother and cousin in Indianapolis. For several nights she called "ma-ma" just before going to sleep; then gave up and didn't use the word again until I returned to her after summer school ended.

Our child is not as obstinate about learning new games and routines as she once was. She accepts me as her teacher—although actually she is my teacher. She has always decided ideas as to what she wanted to have and wanted to do; but she is learning that her mother is even more decided and will have things her own way. Her will has not been broken—nor would I wish for that. She is just gaining more confidence in me and learning to like the things we do together in our lessons. When she plays alone with her toys, she is very interesting to observe in her own happy little realm, where she shows real initiative and definiteness of action.

Training in vibration—two music lessons daily, her hands holding my wrists while I play the piano; singing and talking lessons, her hands held to my face—has been carried on since the age of one year and is mainly responsible for her awareness of vibrations at this time. It would almost seem as if she had heard, she responds so accurately to off-repeated groups of words, sometimes without direct contact of her hand on my face.

Some of the phrases are: "Carol, come here"; "It's time for the piano lesson"; "Show me your tongue"; "Where's mama's nose?"; "No, Carol, don't touch that"; and "Stand up, Carol."

The manner in which she responds seems almost uncanny; yet outside on the sidewalk, or in concrete, instead of frame structures, she does not respond in this way to the speaking voice.

Carol's first sounds before the age of two were "ma-ma," and "foe," for foot, taught through manipulation of her speech organs. I tried to teach her "ma-ma" when she was making happy sounds, but soon discovered that she gave better voice with her more sustained crying sounds. So each time she cried, I would go to her and begin the manipulation for "ma-ma." Several repetitions of this each day for a few days were followed by a period when she was allowed to cry without my going to her—the hope being that she would say "ma-ma" of her own free will. She seemed to know that something was expected of her, but she had to be given more help. She went through a phase during which she would cry for some time and then end up with "ma-ma." Gradually, she learned that no amount of crying brought any kind of response, whereas a simple "ma-ma" obtained unfailing and prompt action, so she gave up the crying act and fastened onto "ma-ma." I have worked hard, through the Tadoma method of vibration and the moto-kinesthetic method of manipulation, to help Carol understand that everything has a name. As yet, I can't be sure how much she has absorbed, because her speech is limited to "ma-ma," "foe" and elementary babbling of speech sounds.

In my work with Carol, I have made several rules for myself but Carol's reactions have in themselves taught me that the following six are the ones upon which my success with her depends:

(1) Assume an objective attitude toward the child and seek to understand better her and her little world by helping and serving as many speech-handicapped children as can be located.

Result: Through the Newmarket Lions club and the public schools, I have been able to help 35 speech cases in our community.

Result: Carol is surprisingly free of "isms", but one has to be constantly on guard against the forming of bad habits. Just now, although she has fed herself since she was two years of age, she has begun to overload her spoon and thinks it fun to scrape the overflow off her bib and from there into her mouth. I tried removing the bib as soon as she had finished the contents of the dish, thus depriving her of the joy of shoveling from bib to mouth. But Carol out-smarted me by developing a new technique; she began the shoveling process immediately after each spill—and she never takes chances spilling her favorite foods. Unless she soon ceases this overloading game, I'll try letting her spill food on her little bare chest.

While I am on the subject of food and eating, it might be interesting to give a "blow by blow" account of a struggle that is going on at the present time in our menage in connection with the technique of cookie eating. Carol has an aversion to holding food in her hand, although she is very fond of cookies. I misled her in the beginning by holding the cookie for her instead of helping her to hold it for herself; so, naturally, she expected me to cling to the original method. Now Carol is having to readjust her method because I blundered in my teaching. Yesterday I held her hand around a cookie and we carried it to her mouth, which was waiting expectantly. When I released my hand, Carol quickly dropped the cookie on the table and displayed warranted temper at its failure to land in her mouth. The cookie remained where it was for some time. Then Carol tried to eat it directly from the table. That failed, so she finally took her spoon and with a determined look tried to lift the cookie to her mouth. Still no luck! The next time I tried holding her hand around the cookie and carrying it to her mouth, she jammed the cookie into her mouth the minute I released my grip on her hand. Yesterday Carol wouldn't hold a cookie in her own hand. Today, while we were riding in the back seat of a car with a mother and her little boy, Carol suddenly grabbed a half-eaten cookie from her small companion's mouth. She held it close to her own mouth, examining it for several minutes before she started to shove it in in rapid fashion. Of course, shoving cookies into the mouth will have to be changed to taking little bites and taking them in more leisurely fashion. This is our current problem; but we will master it, and in so doing add another seemingly trivial, but truly important, action to the long list of just such simple, normal actions that have thus far made Carol behave like a happy, good, little girl.

But to get back to the subject of habits:

Personally, I have never appreciated the satisfaction some parents derive from having their children run crying to them with every bump or scratch. These infantile habits are stultifying, at best, and at worst, are sometimes carried through, in a modified form, into adult life. Long before Carol had her first tumble, I had resolved not to rush to her. That was one of the most difficult resolutions I have ever made; but, with effort, I have kept it. I can't control that instinctive jump within me when there is a tumble, but I do manage to stay where I am for the moment and try to observe from a distance. After all, the hurt is already there and rushing to her would only excite her unnecessarily. Besides, the next time she would expect similar attention and would probably scream twice as loud to receive it. Carol had reacted according to my fondest hopes in this matter of bumps and scratches. She doesn't know that sympathy is due her, and so she doesn't cry for it. She associates loving and kissing only with achievement in her lessons. Bumps and scratches bring forth only brief sounds of surprise or a pained expression across her mobile face. It was a different matter on the two occasions when she got stuck under the arm of a chair. First she tried to free herself. Then she cried with alarm because she couldn't. After she was freed, she was calmly placed in the same chair and a minute later had to be freed from under the other arm; from these experiences she learned that she couldn't slide off the chair under either arm and she hasn't repeated the mistake of trying.
